"Be A Sport - Give A Quart"

If you can keep your blood when others are losing theirs, perhaps you don't understand the situation. Namely, the situation is that McGill is holding her annual Blood Drive starting Monday, October 24, with an objective of 2000 pints of blood to be met or bettered.

Nothing To Fear

The Red Cross has emphasized the point that there is nothing to be feared in giving blood. Anyone over the age of 18 is eligible. There are no special diets to be followed previous to donating, but at the Clinic anyone who is found to have a severe cold or anemia will be asked not to give blood. The actual procedure takes approximately 80 minutes time.

After giving blood donors will be offered coffee, donuts and cookies, and cigarettes.

Competition

One of the main competitions that the Blood Clinic sparks off is that between the three Undergraduate Societies — Arts & Science, Commerce, and Engineering. A handicap system is used to enable the faculties to start off on an

PSC TELEPHONE DISAPPEARS; OFFICIALS PONDER PROBLEM

Do you have an extra telephone?

It seems that a telephone was stolen from the Physical Science Centre. In a report received by the Daily, it was indicated that the phone bearing local number 357 was removed by some unknown person from the second floor of the Centre yesterday. The whole incident occurred sometime between 1 and 2 p.m., when no one was in the vicinity.

Neatly Clipped

The telephone wire was neatly clipped near the floor. While first impressions would lead one to wonder just what anyone would want with a loose telephone, further investigation reveals that re-installation of the apparatus would be a relatively simple matter.

Apparently, a phone in the Physics Building was stolen two months ago in the same fashion. Last winter, three phones were taken from the same two buildings.

Same Person

The staff suspects that all the jobs were done by the same person, possibly someone who once worked in the Centre for a short time and left with a key. Officials were reluctant to give comment on the robbery, evidently because of their lack of complete information.

Dental Convocation

Dentistry - Highly Recognized Profession

by Lois Loeff

"Dentistry is not a specialty within the field of medicine." So said Sir William Kelsey Fry, C.B.E., M.C., M.D.S., F.R.C.S., in an address to the Special Dental Convocation held yesterday. Reviewing some of the changes that have taken place in the field of dentistry in the past fifty years, Sir William traced its development from the time when it was regarded as a craft through to the present, when dentistry takes its place as a highly recognized profession. Although dentistry is a part of medical research, it must not be considered as merely a division of the field of medicine.

His first contact with dentistry showed Sir William that the emphasis was almost entirely with technique. As dental schools developed, it was realized that human contact also played a major part.

"Symbol of Wisdom"

The dentist, according to Sir William, is a "symbol of wisdom, learning, and human kindness." Being, in a sense, a physician, the dentist can learn something from the education of doctors wherein one realizes that he must think, rather than just rely on the absorption of techniques. Sir William also raised the question, "Is specialization essential?" He stated that perhaps a narrow part of a narrow field is not enough. Praising the dental faculty at

McGill, Sir William cited the work of two recent deans, Dr. Arthur Walsh, and Dr. Mowry. Both of these men worked hard to further the practice of dental education. Honorary Doctorate of Science

Sir William offered his thanks to the Board of Governors for the Honorary Doctorate of Science bestowed upon him. He expressed pride in the fact that he was receiving an honour from "a great University in another land".

Close to 400 students, dentists, and their wives attended the Convocation, which was in honour of the fiftieth anniversary of the inception of the faculty of Dentistry in McGill.

Welcomed Graduates

Following the recitation of the Convocation prayer by Rev. Clifford Knowles, Dr. F. Cyril James welcomed the many graduates. He spoke of the beginnings of the

FORUM DISCUSSES GOD AND COLLEGE

As part of a programme to bring religious questions before the McGill student, the McGill Students' Religious Council sponsored a symposium, held in the Assembly Hall of the Medical Building in the evening of October 17. Dr. George B. Caird, Dr. Murry Ballantyne, and Dr. Solomon Frank spoke on different aspects of the topic, "God and the College Student."

Dr. Caird

Dr. Caird, in talking about "God and the Idea of University", held that university study presupposed there is an objective reality to discover, that the student was bound to try to discover and then follow it. Therefore, he said, theology is a necessary study.

Dr. Ballantyne

"God is reality," said Dr. Ballantyne, the second speaker. He maintained that since education, as differentiated from instruction, is a search for truth, or reality, an education must include a study of God. Dr. Ballantyne's topic was

"God and the Vocation of Study." Dr. Frank

Dr. Frank talked about "God and Personal Ethics." He said that although man's instincts tend to pull him down, he has "the power of moral freedom to use the image of the Divine to justify our divinity." Doing so, he held, was the purpose of life.

Devil

In the discussion period that followed the speeches, some of the differences in opinion between the religious leaders were brought out. Dr. Ballantyne, in answer to a question from the floor, undertook to defend the existence of the Devil. Perhaps not with wings and a tail, he maintained, but he exists. I've met him.

Rabbi Frank disagreed with this, blaming man's instincts for the evil of the world. Dr. Caird suggested the existence of evil, in whatever form it might take.

The three also presented views on the purpose of life, views re-

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED

Eleven Canadians will soon be chosen for Rhodes scholarships in 1956 and all candidates have until November 1st to apply for it. Two of these scholarships will be given to students of the Province of Quebec.

Paul Gerin-Lajoie

That is what the secretary of the Selection Committee for the Province of Quebec, Mr. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Barrister and solicitor, of Montreal, announced yesterday, stressing that the scholarships give the right to study for at least two years at the University of Oxford, England.

In making nominations the Selection Committee will have regard to the qualities laid down by Mr. Rhodes in that section of his will in which he defined the general type of scholar he desired. The candidates should have literary and scholastic attainments: qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness and fellowship. They also must display exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in their fellows. The physical vigour, as shown by fondness for and success in outdoor sports, will also be considered.

Quality of Distinction

Some definite quality of distinction, whether in intellect or character, or a combination of these, is the most important requirement for Rhodes Scholarships, and it is upon this that the Committee will insist.

Eleven Canadians

The eleven Canadians who will register at Oxford in 1956 will be selected during the month of November, and their names will be made known at the beginning of December. All candidates must be male Canadian citizens or British subjects, with at least five years' residence completed by October 1st, 1955, and with the intention of permanent residence in Canada. They must have passed their 19th,

The Herald Tribune Conference

Dag Hammarskjöld, Secretary General of the United Nations, delivered the opening address of the twenty-fourth annual Herald Tribune Forum held in New York last weekend. The Forum, sponsored by one of the City's leading daily newspapers, The Herald Tribune, is attended each year by student and faculty representatives from leading universities and colleges of the United States and Canada.

Hammarskjöld opened the first of the two Forum sessions, "Promise and Problems of Atomic Power," on Sunday night in the United Nations General Assembly Hall. He applauded the results of the International Conference for the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy held at Geneva as a great stride towards solving the problem of peaceful co-existence in the face of the atomic threat. He predicted that if nations could agree to use atomic energy for the benefit of mankind, "it should also lead us toward the unlocking of a greater secret even than atomic energy, the secret of lasting peace."

Ogden Reid, President and Editor of the Herald Tribune, spoke after Hammarskjöld had welcomed the assembly on behalf of his newspaper. He spoke optimistically of the results of the Geneva conference, but emphasized that agreement on the control of the atom must be reached quickly. With the passage of time, more countries will become capable of producing atomic weapons and agreement then will become much more difficult.

A panel discussion on the subject followed Reid's talk. The eminent panel members included H. J. Bhabha, chairman of the Indian Atomic Energy Commission and president of the International Conference for the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy; V. S. Emlayanov, advisor to the USSR Delegation to the tenth session of the General Assembly; William Libby, a member of the United States Atomic Energy Commission; and Victor Weisskoff, a professor of physics at MIT.

The panel unanimously agreed that the Geneva conference was a success from all points of view. They discussed the various uses of atomic energy for peaceful purposes including the treatment of diseases and preservation of food. It was generally felt that atomic energy's greatest contribution would lie in the field of power. It was pointed out that eight cubic feet of fissionable material could supply the total power needs of the world for a complete year.

Anthony Nutting, British Minister of state for Foreign Affairs, Arkady Sobolev, permanent representative of the USSR to the United Nations, and Harold E. Stassen, United States delegate on disarmament to the United Nations, each in turn spoke on the political problems involved in agreement and compromise among their respective nations. All were optimistic in regard to the future of the "atoms for peace" program. Their speeches ended the first session of the Forum, and the meeting adjourned until the following evening in the Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"Constructive Action in Tension Areas" was the topic under discussion at the second of the Forum on Monday night. The United States, Viet Nam, India, North Africa, The Middle East and France were represented.

Viet Nameese ambassador to the United States, Tran Van Chuong, reported on the political situation now prevailing in his country. He said that Viet Nam is a battlefield divided into two camps, the communists to the north, and the nationalists in the South. He saw no alternative but an eventual showdown. He blamed the loss of North Viet Nam to its status as a French colony, whose people were not willing to fight for their rulers. Chuong urged that the United States continue its aid to the Nationalists in order that they may establish firmly the new free nation as the democratic keystone of Indochina and Southeast Asia.

Rajammal P. Devadas, chief home economist of India, outlined the problems that are now facing the Indian government in its attempt to raise the standard of living of its peoples. She described a five year plan now in progress which is expected to increase the national income by some 17 per cent. Another undertaking is the education of the village women in modern techniques of cooking and child care. Because the average income in the Indian villages is only $55 a year, they must be taught to utilize this sum in the most efficient manner possible. Trained women workers in the villages are presently engaged in this type of education.

Both sides of the North African problem were presented by El-Mehdi Ben-Aboud, a Moroccan nationalist, and Paul Reynaud, former premier of France and the chairman of the Finance Committee of the French National Assembly. Ben-Aboud advocated complete independence for Morocco, deprecating the French treatment of the Moroccan people. He accused the French of seizing Morocco's most productive lands and suppressing all opposition. He assured the United States that should Morocco achieve independence, "equitable arrangements" would be made concerning the maintenance of American air-bases now on Moroccan soil.

Reynaud spoke defending the French position in North Africa. He denied the charge that France has misunderstood the power and significance of the nationalist movements and is continuing to act as a colonial power in opposition of these powers.

"France knows that colonialism is dead; France respects national aspirations. The words sovereignty, liberty and independence are words which we have taught in our universities to many nationalist leaders, both Asian and Arab", he said.

France cannot get out of Morocco because 2,000,000 Frenchman, one tenth of the population, have made it their home and life. He added that under the French, the Moslem population had increased from 3,000,000 to 18,000,000; and schools, cities, hospitals and roads had been built. The French government, he continued, was doing its utmost to find policies of conciliation and understanding with North Africa.

The Middle East question was discussed by representatives of Syria and Israel, as well as Eric Johnson of the United States.

Ahmed Shukairy, chairman of the Syrian delegation to the United Nations, advocated that complete repatriation was the only possible solution to the Israeli problem. He stated that the land now occupied by the Jews rightly belonged to the Arab world and especially to the refugees that were driven out, and no compromise was possible unless they were returned their properties and wealth.

Abba Eban, Israeli Ambassador to the United States, said that resettlement of these refugees should be in the Arab countries, which possesses the resources to receive them, rather than in Israel, a country which they have been taught to hate. He said that peace in the Middle East would be greatly advantageous to both sides.

Special Envoy for the President to the Middle East, Eric Johnston, reported on the progress that had been made in the settlement of the River Jordan dispute. He said that a plan had been formulated which seemed to be acceptable to all sides concerned and expressed the hope that it will be settled officially in the near future.

The vice-president of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, closed the Forum with a speech in which he expressed the belief that "the chances for peace today are greater than at any time since World War II".

Letters to the Editor

An Apology Is Due

Sir:

In Monday's Daily an article on the Music Club was printed in the "Town Crier" column, which began as follows: "For the first time in the history of McGill there is an active Music Club . . ."

The Music Club was founded in 1952, and I think an apology is due to the members of the executives who spent a lot of time and effort in making the club a success during the past three years. But for their enterprise and hard work, the Music Club would not be in existence at all this year.

A Plea For NFCUS

Sir:

While some of the students have been idly discussing the N.F.C.U.S. problem, action was taken on the part of a few, and as a result the following petition is circulating on the campus:

WHEREAS, the National Federation of Canadian University Students is the organization that contributes to unity among Canadian students, and

WHEREAS, a means of exchanging ideas and maintaining strong ties with other universities is a vital aspect of college life, and

WHEREAS, the hasty move of McGill to relinquish its bonds with N.F.C.U.S. was voted for by only 5% of the entire student body, and even then they triumphed with a very narrow margin,

THEREFORE, we the undersigned members of the Students' Society, having given serious thought to the matter, petition the Students' Society to put on its agenda for the next meeting a motion to rejoin N.F.C.U.S.

Much has been said in previous years against the national body, and even those who favour membership therein must admit that there were a certain amount of things open to harsh criticism.

Nevertheless, let us consider what N.F.C.U.S. really is for.

Its purpose is to provide an association for universities.

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the achievements of N.F.C.U.S., here is partial list of things that it provides for its members:

1. Inexpensive fares to Europe.
2. National Art and Short Story contests.
3. A representative voice in International Student Organizations.
4. If it were supported by all undergraduates it could be a strong pressure group able to secure government scholarships.
5. Regional exchange scholarships.
6. Exchange of ideas on student affairs and government at the annual conference.

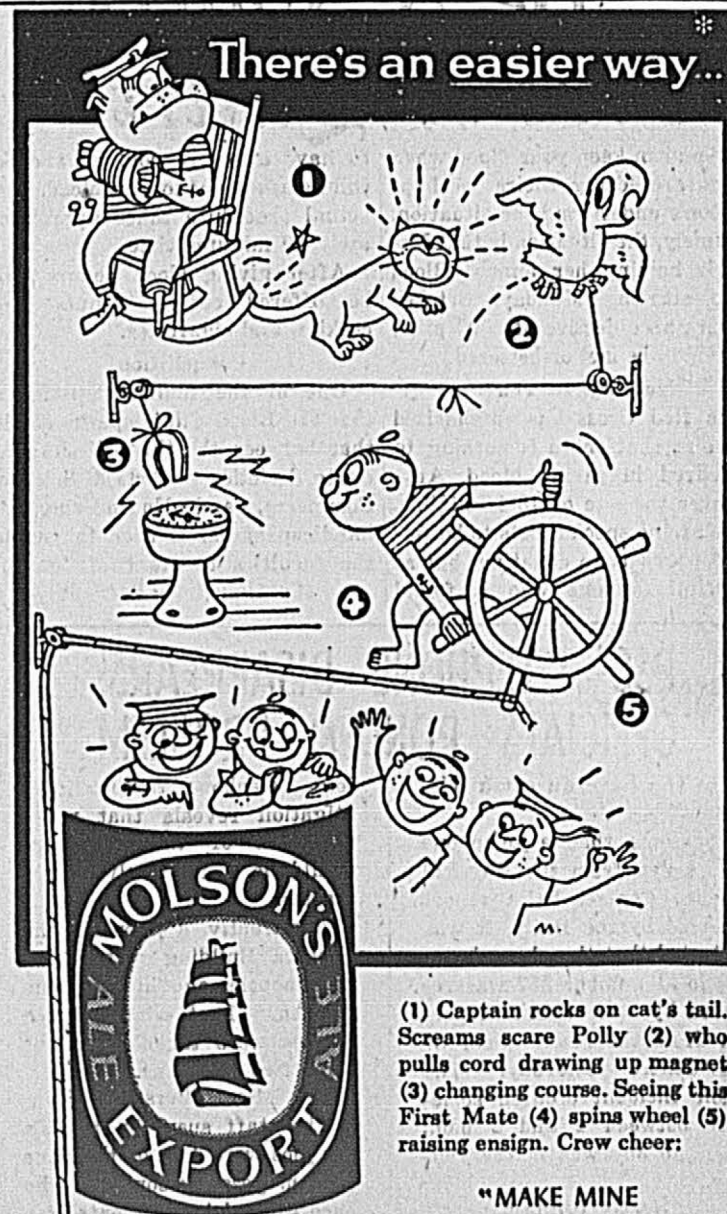

True, these might not provide reason enough to make membership in the organization desirable for all — yet if we compare N.F.C.U.S. to the United Nations, we find that though neither of these fine organizations have achieved their ultimate purpose they do justify their existence by the work they do, and the money spent on them is not wasted.

Thus N.F.C.U.S., like the U. N. is the only means to a successful end.

It is, therefore, the duty of every McGill student to consider the question and to support the petition. (A copy of which is available for endorsement purposes

INTERS LESS MARPOLE VS COMBINES TONIGHT

Derek Marpole, the touchdown terror from Trinity College, will be sidelined tonight as the McGill Indians entertain the South Shore Combines at 8 pm at Molson's Stadium.

The fleet-footed halfback bruised his shoulder last Saturday when the Indians fell prey to the hustling Bishop's University squad. His absence will be felt painfully by the Indian team as he has scored four out of their five majors to date.

Coach Shorty Fairhead has high hopes for his replacement, speedy Stu Colt. Colt has also been on the temporary disabled list with an injured leg.

Fairhead said that the Indians did not look bad against Bishop's despite their loss.

"We could have beat them", Fairhead pointed out. "That win against the Eastward 55ers was what really beat us. Complacency set in and the boys thought that they could walk away with the game. We went ahead 6-0 in the first half, but the roof fell in in the second half when the Galtors tallied for two touchdowns and won 10-6.

The Indians certainly missed the services of capable Bill Picard in the second half. Picard was summoned up by the Redmen and, incidentally, will remain with them for the balance of the season.

The Indians' foes tonight, the South Shore Combines, have an unimpressive record of one win and two losses. They will, however, be out to improve their standings against the McGill outfit. Spokesmen in both camps have predicted a tough tooth and nail battle.

Indian coach Fairhead, a Korean war veteran wounded twice in overseas action, is confident that his team can pull out of their one game slump. He expects an even combination of ground and aerial attack to foil the Combine defence. He is particularly relying on tackle Mike Byrne, who seems to be able to open holes as wide as the mouth of the Mississippi.

ANDERSON'S CHARGES VISIT LONDON FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE TRACK MEET

by Stu Smith

The University of Toronto will attempt today to retain, for the third successive year, their Intercollegiate Track and Field Championship. Three determined aggregations from Western, Queens and McGill will be bidding to upset the powerful Blue and White crew at London, Ontario.

The McGill contingent, coached by Joe Anderson, will sport a number of new faces as well as a good many holdovers from last season. Outstanding among the newcomers is Freshman Matthew Boldon, the Trinidad flash, who is slated to show his form in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and, possibly, in the mile relay. Boldon does not feel that he has reached the peak of his form, however, as this damp weather is not the most conducive to extensive training. He is counted on by Coach Anderson to perform well in the dashes even though these races are almost certain to be won by Dick Harding of Toronto. The latter is a former Canadian representative at the British Empire Games. He, last year, walked off with not only the 100 and 220-yard events, but took the 440 as well in the fast time of 50.3 seconds. As a matter of interest, Harding, in the last meet, shared with McGill's Lionel Whitman the Hec Phillips Trophy, awarded to the outstanding performer at the competition.

Graduation has been a painful factor as far as McGill is concerned since the previously-mentioned Lionel Whitman will not be around today to collect what would be ten sure points and Bob Gill, formerly McGill's top miler, has also departed. The mile will be run for the Redmen by Murdoch, who has some pretty fair times to his credit. There is a rumor circulating that one Mister Rich Ferguson will compete this year under Western colours, but this has not as yet been verified.

Peter Reid, last year's half-mile champ, is Joe Anderson's choice for the 440-yard event as well as the 880. He will be accompanied in both these races by the capable Doug Maule. It is Anderson's hope that this duo will amass a reasonably high number of points between them.

Other than Reid, the only McGill man competing this year who won an event in the last meet is Russ Briere, high-jump expert. Briere easily outclassed his field at Toronto in 1954 and he is expected to garner a much-needed five points for the Redmen once again. Backing him up will be Pole-vaulter Bob Land, who has demonstrated an aptitude recently for clearing the bar even without the aid of a pole. Spencer will perform in the Broad jump as Jerry Anderson has pulled a muscle in his leg and is temporarily out of action.

Joe Anderson was optimistic about his charges' chances in the Mile relay. The team will consist of four of the following five men: Reid, Maule, Boldon, Winship and Cains. Winship will not have much free time for he is scheduled to enter the dashes and to hurl the discuss in addition to his relay chores.

Another busy man sporting the Red and White today will be Sutherland. He will throw both the Javelin and the Shot in an attempt to fill the shoes of Whitman. Last year, Sutherland placed fourth in these competitions, but the fact that the two men who captured the first two slots in that meet are not entered today, will, no doubt, enhance his chances considerably.

Norm Williams of Toronto will not race this year, leaving the field wide open in the hurdling events and the Broad Jump, all of which he swept last fall. It is Joe Anderson's opinion that the McGill crew, consisting of the boys previously noted, as well as Mersereau, Constantine and Kalnins, is a well-balanced aggregation which should pile up a considerable total as far as points are concerned, but it does not seem likely that they will break any records. McGill's total of 35 last year was 37 short of the strong Toronto club, but this year might conceivably see a different result. Let us hope so.

Last year the final percentages were:

Faculty of Arts & Science: 42.4%

There is some speculation as to what would happen if the Faculty of Commerce were to win the competition. Commerce students have no official building to call their own, as have Arts and Engineering students. Solutions to this problem will be welcomed by Tony Straessle, Blood Clinic Chairman. MID-LOW
FITTING

The Continental flavour is highly popular in footwear... and here is one of the very latest styles built by Ritchie in dressy black calf... a smart plain toe, 2-eyelet tie that shows racy lines. You'll like the extra comfort of the mid-low ankle fitting, and BLACK is so right for fall.
